

Ladies and gentlemen,

I would like to thank you to be here today and to be listening to me. I am here to give the speech at this opening ceremony for the Olympic Games of 2020 and I am so glad to welcome you here, in Tokyo. First of all, I would like to thank all the people who have participated to create this great event. We never see them, but that's because of these people that we can enjoy these Games. Now let's talk about the Games.

First, the Olympic Games are a way to be together. We see our teams together, we laugh together, we scream together, we cry together. When we see our favorite athletes, we are happy ; when they lose, we are sad... In a way, these Games make us united, and it's very important because we can't win if we are alone, it's impossible.

Moreover, the Olympic Games are a good way to see the evolution of the world. The Games of London were the first Games where the teams had to have a woman. It's a good point for the equality between men and women. Also, the Olympic Games of 2016 were the first Games where there was a Team Refugee. You can't imagine how hard it was for certain people to leave their countries, and now they have a team for them, a team that lets them show their talents.

To end this speech, I would say that the Olympics of Tokyo maybe hide a new improvement, like the ones before.

Don't forget these Games are here to make us united. I would thank again everyone who have listened listened to me, and I hope theses Olympics will be as interested as the others. Goodbye everybody and happy Olympic Games!

Emma ROUSSEL, élève de 1ère S5